Fabric Designer or Line? Windham Anthology Batiks (Natalie Barnes—guest designer)
Story about this quilt: I don't usually purchase a lot of batik fabrics so I'm always excited when Natalie is the guest designer for Windham's batiks and she asks me to make a sample quilt. I tried to pick a very modern pattern so that her "look book" would show the wide range of uses for batiks. This ended up being a 2-sided quilt because I used Marcia Derse's Art History fabric panel on the back. <https://www.marciaderse.com/art-history-101>

Fabric Designer or Line? Natalie Barnes' Maker's Collage (to be released in the Fall)
Story about this quilt: This is a paper pieced pattern that I've been wanting to try for quite a while. When Natalie asked me to make a sample quilt using her new line of black, white and gray fabrics (with Marcia Derse solid coordinating colors) I thought this pattern would be perfect.

Who Quilted this? Myself
Story about this quilt: This is my Combo Quilt for my church's 2022 high school graduates. We make them each a quilt and I use the leftover fabric to make a combo quilt that stays at the church. With the 5 graduates the five-pointed star came to mind quite quickly. While I was working on the quilt I kept thinking of this group as shining stars or all-stars. It's a wonderful mission project.

Story about this quilt: Two dear quilting friends insisted I purchase this 'Wild Poppy' kit when they discovered it on sale. I liked the panels—thought they would be fun to quilt. Changed the sashing a little. 57 x 73 inches. Backing—the poppies. Quilted with variegated King Tut on top and deep red in the bobbin on my domestic machine. Used 80/20 Hobbs batting. Gift to my sister-in-law who loves red and poppies.

Story about this quilt: This was made from a Charm Pack from the early days of those gems when quilt shops cut their own. They were so successful with this idea that fabric manufactures started creating them for us. The 6" squares ranged in size from 6" to 5 1/4" hence each had to be trimmed to a common size.
