

Kim T shared a hint during her presentation using the pool noodle binding winding gift that was in the gift bags given at the 25th June Jubilee—put the hole of the pool noodle over a thread stand to keep the noodle and binding up off the floor.

Project Name: Fall placemats
Story about this quilt: Fall is my favorite Season and all the Fall quilts in my home reflect my appreciation for Fall colors. Liked the printed autumn design on these small panels. May need to flip them to the back when serving spaghetti sauce!
Who Quilted this? I free motioned the placemats following the print design.

Project Name: Firefly
Size of Project: 55" X 70"
Story about this quilt: My granddaughter, Quinn, loves dragons and I made this for her 7th birthday. I had the template pattern for the dragon and then had to design the borders which was a new challenge for me. The quilt label had to be a dragon egg, of course!

Project Name: What we won't do for our kids!
Size of Project: 9' X 12'
Story about this quilt: My daughter teaches Art in a PreK-5th Elementary school, South Bronx. Her 2nd grade students dyed fabric squares with variety of natural dyes. My daughter challenged me to make a rug with the squares. I pieced the blocks, pieced a huge batting and backing—then machine tacked the intersections.

The rug lasted 2 years...the 'ragged' rug came back this summer for refurbishment. I zig zagged all the seams, darned many toe holes and put on rubber rug backing!

Project Name: Yellow and Blues
Size of Project: 37.5" X 57"
Story about this quilt: I wanted to use up some of my blue fabrics. I had done this same pattern in reds, oranges and black previously. I faced the quilt rather than doing a binding.

Project Name: Sorbet
Size of Project: 50" X 65"
Special tool or ruler: Amanda Murphy wave ruler
Story about this quilt: Fresh from MPS silent auction finds, I used a bundle I had purchased with some orphan blocks I had on hand. The orphan blocks were also used on the back of the quilt. I framed the block several times with strips. Then cut the block in quarters and turned them to create the sorbet wave.

Digital design by a bit of orange

Project Name:

Wingful Feathers

Size of Project:

55" X 55"

Story about this quilt:

This digital design is definitely not for beginners. I ran into some difficulties, but was able to figure out how to solve the problems. It stitched out beautifully with a little help and understanding on how to place the designs exactly where they needed to go.

Story about this quilt:

I like this pattern for children's quilts; it is fairly simple but you can incorporate a variety of colors to enhance the design. The back is a variety of flannels—nice and cozy! I was thrilled to find a binding that went so well for each side. Hope a child likes it.

Project Name:

The Picnic Quilt

Size of Project:

50" X 64"

Story about this quilt:

I saw the free Ribbon Box pattern on a fabric website and decided then and there to make it using two lines of fabric I saw at Montavilla Sewing in Lake Oswego. I made the quilt 6" wider and also made changes in the construction to eliminate a lot of seams that broke up the continuity of the fabric designs. I like the pattern so much I have made a second version!
